EXTRA Precaution

In the wake of the Wuhan virus, we are taking some extra measures to protect our patients and the environment in which we provide.

- We see one patient at a time – non patients wait in the car.
- We then sanitize the office beyond our normal sterilization techniques.
 - Wiping down all surfaces the patient may have contacted
 - pens and pencils, door handles, countertops etc.
- We are doing only emergent “drilling” procedures to avoid aerosol spray
- For procedures that might contaminate our air quality we use a heavy-duty external vacuum
- Every patient must complete our infection control questionnaire. Those with positive responses will be rescheduled to a time that is part of the protocols of safety as recommended by the CDC.
- Patients: please utilize recommended hygiene in our office and at home.
- Personally, we, ourselves, are restrictive in our contacts and travels, using optimum sanitation practices outside and inside the home and office.

I have read the aforementioned and agree that all precautions have been applied in accordance with the proclamation of the State of WA and CDC, to protect my safety and of those who may enter after me.
